

Purchasing Details

Launch Date: September 2025

Available at:

Ornaross.com/crowdofstars
And all other retailers

Available in multiple formats:

E-Book: 978-1-913349-21-9

Paperback: 978-1-909888-29-6

Hardback: 978-1-913349-53-0

Large Print: 978-1-913349-52-3

Categories: Irish Poetry, Love Poems, WB Yeats

Similar Poets: WB Yeats, Maya Angelou, John O'Donoghue, Mary Oliver

A Crowd of Stars

WB Yeats Love Poems To Maud Gonne with commentary from the muse

He was Ireland's greatest poet, driven by a spiritual quest and passion for perfection. She was a revolutionary icon, willing to risk all to see a free Ireland. Both pursued their mission with single-minded zeal and changed countless lives.

Step into the world of A Crowd of Stars, a story of love, literature and politics woven from some of the most exquisite love poetry ever written, paired with commentary from "the Muse" herself.

About the Poet

Orna Ross is an award-winning Irish novelist and poet whose books explore creative expansion and the rebalance of male and female forces. An international bestseller, her writing awards include the Goethe Grand Prize for Historical Fiction and the Gold Literary Titan award for poetry, and she has been named one of the Top 100 People in Publishing for her work with ALLi, the Alliance of Independent Authors. She was born and raised in Wexford, in the south-east of Ireland, and now lives in St Leonard's on Sea, in the south-east of England, within working reach of London. Her motto is: "When in doubt, be braver."

Contact

Website: Ornaross.com

Instagram: Instagram.com/ornaross.author

Email for enquiries:
publications@ornaross.com

Praise for Orna Ross

"Orna Ross reaches into the corners of your soul and pulls out all that is beautiful, all that is painful, all that is so very 'human.'"

—SoWrite Linda, Kobo

"Technically brilliant, emotionally beguiling and at times startling."

—The View From Here Literary Review

"Orna Ross is a major poet and deserves the world's attention."

—Robin Cutler, Director of IngramSpark